
情境模拟：Chapter 2 Ward Routine Work

Unit 1 Reporting Dialogue 1 as RN Lucy

采用教材：《涉外护理英语情境对话》，刘晨，外语教学与研究出版社

Dialogue 1: Change-of-Shift Report

(At 7:00 am, Alice, the RN going off shift is giving the change-of-shift report to Lucy, the incoming RN.)

Alice: Hi, Lucy. Are you ready for the report?

RN Lucy: _____

Alice: Yes, 204 and 210B.

RN Lucy: _____

Alice: Room 204, Diana Robinson, is a 50-year-old female diabetic with a foot infection. She was admitted last night by Dr. Williams. She has a 25-year history of diabetes and hypertension. Two weeks ago, while cutting her toe nails, she cut her skin and the foot got infected. The patient can't feel pain in her foot, because she has a diabetic neuropathy, but family members noticed that her foot had a bad odor.

RN Lucy: _____

Alice: Right. The foot does smell, and we have to put her into a private room. Dr. Williams ordered Hibiclens soaks daily and IV Ancef. She had her firs does last night. It's a q 8 hour order. She will need two more doses today, and a Hibiclens treatment.

RN Lucy: _____

Alice: It's not well controlled. 210 and 180 last night and 178 at 6 am this morning. She has accuchecks ordered AC and HS. She is on Lantus 20 units qd plus a sliding scale for regular insulin AC and HS.

RN Lucy: _____

Alice: Right. She is on a low sugar 1,800 calorie ADA diet.

RN Lucy: _____

Alice: Yes. We have to change the dressings bid with her Hibiclens soaks, and RRN. It looks really bad at her great toe. Dr. Williams feels he will have to amputate. This is very emotional for Mrs. Robinson. She was in tears when she told me about the possible amputation.

RN Lucy: _____

Alice: Not yet. Dr. Williams will come to talk to her later.

RN Lucy: _____

Alice: Vital signs stable. Routine vital signs. Activity is bed rest with elevation of her left foot, with heel protectors because of her diabetes. She has a saline lock in the left forearm, 22 gauge. There is a dietitian consult order you need to follow up on. Dr. Williams wants you to call him if the patient's blood sugar is greater than 300. Any questions?

RN Lucy: _____

Alice: She is comfortable now, but there is a PRN order for Vicodin. All ready. I'm going to move on to Room 210B, OK?

RN Lucy: _____

(The report continues.)